

A Thank You

We'd like to say a big thank you to all our customers who took a load of crap TVs off our hands last night. We honestly thought we'd never shift them. But thanks to you, our wonderful customers, we've got more money in our tills and less crap TVs to sell.

We genuinely hope that you enjoy your new product. You may find that some of them may not be quite the bargain that you thought they were, but hey - you get what you pay for in this world and besides, that annoying woman you twatted in the face with the discounted kettle last night isn't watching Coronation Street tonight on a TV like yours is she?

Merry Christmas to one and all! And just remember:

Every little helps
