

How do I register?

Written by Administrator

Monday, 25 June 2007 00:27 - Last Updated Thursday, 24 December 2015 13:07

Registering with the Ledbury Portal is really straightforward.

Go to the log in form at the top of the page and click register (from here simply follow the instructions). You will need to fill in the five fields of the registration form and click send registration.

An email response will be automatically sent to you. Open this email and click on the link to open your account.

There will be a delay between your registering and a member of the Portal team permitting your registration. All registration requests are checked by someone in the portal team to ensure no 'spam' registrations - It's really just to check you are a human user, not some hacking script. Please be patient as we will deal with your request as soon as possible.

When you revisit the Ledbury Portal, log in using your username and password. You are then enabled to write articles, make comments, start discussions and respond to others in the forum area, submit web links (see User Menu), and vote on the current poll (right side of the web page).

If you want to edit and publish sections of the Ledbury Portal see contact us in the main menu on the left of the page. Choose to either visit us, write, telephone or email . We welcome both your interest and enthusiasm.